Welcome Isaiah Jeremiah Castille

Tim and Dee Castille are the proud parents of Isaiah Jeremiah Castille. Isaiah was born Easter Sunday, March 27, 2016, weighing 8 pounds and 6 ounces and 22 inches long. Isaiah joins 3 granddaughters, making a total of 4 grandchildren for Honey and Papa. What a blessing and joy to welcome Isaiah into our family.

Character Camps - 2016

WE ARE GROWING

Jeremiah Castille Foundation served approximately 250, K - 12th graders during our two Castille Character Camps in 2015. God has opened doors and expanded our outreach in 2016, to four camps across Alabama and North Carolina. We anticipate sharing our Lord and Savior with 800 or more students. Cullman, AL, welcomes us for the 9th annual camp and our camp in Decatur, AL, will be our 3rd annual camp. Our inaugural camps in Birmingham and North Carolina will allow us to serve an additional 400 or more campers. Each camp concludes with a service where we share the gospel of Christ with the campers, their families and the community. Thank you, Lord, for the professions of faith that you orchestrated at the camp services in 2015. Please join us in praying that God will bless the 2016 camps and that many campers will make decisions for Christ.

Jeremiah Castille Foundation in partnership with the First Baptist Church of Irondale will present approximately 530 students at Irondale Middle School with BAGS of HOPE in August 2016. Your donation to this program is greatly appreciated.

WE ARE CHAMPIONS!

We are proud of the accomplishments of Jeremiah Castille. In 2016, two of the teams for which he played were crowned as the national champion in their respective leagues. The Denver Broncos won Super Bowl 50 and the University of Alabama is once again, national champions.

In honor of Jeremiah's Denver Bronco career, the NFL, presented each player and their high school with a 50th anniversary football. Central High School in Phenix City, Alabama, was presented their football at an assembly, January 27, 2016.

Former Central High School football star, Jeremiah Castille, shared an impassioned message to a select gathering of Central High students when he presented the school with a gold football from the NFL. The commemorative football marked the 50th anniversary of the Super Bowl. Castille played for the Denver Broncos in Super Bowl XXII and was asked, along with all other Super Bowl participants to present the token to the school in which they began their career.

Castille wanted to present the students with much more, however. "I wanted to come back," he said. "I owe so much to Central High School and all the teachers that were here, and I wanted to encourage the students who are here now."

Currently, Castille serves as a team chaplain for the Alabama football team, a position he's held since 2001. In a booming voice that echoed the preachers one might hear on a Sunday in the South, Castille shared some of the difficulties he had to overcome in his youth to be able to have the success he did. That success included 16 career interceptions at Alabama, a national championship in 1979, a Super Bowl appearance in 1988 and much more.

He grew up in a home marred by alcoholism and substance abuse, he said, and it was on him to make it to school every day. "You know how I got to school everyday?" he asked the room. "I ran. I ran two-a-days in football, and I ran to and from school. Why? Because that's how big my dream was."

He shared how relationships - his friends, coaches and teachers - were the most important foundations of his success. He relied on people like former Red Devils coach Wayne Trawick and former Alabama coach, the late Paul "Bear" Bryant. Among his closest friends was Eddie Lowe, current mayor of Phenix City and brother of former Central coach Woodrow Lowe. "He was a walk-on at Alabama for four years and he was voted team captain as a senior," Castille said. "And I roomed with him for four years."

He encouraged the students to be proud and to utilize the resources they had in front of them at Central. "You don't get to play in a Super Bowl if you aren't disciplined," he said. "You can't win a championship if you're not disciplined. ... What football represents to me is all the things you have to do to be in a position to make a play like I did in the 1988 AFC Championship game." He was referring to a strip he made of Cleveland Browns running back Earnest Byner with 1:12 remaining in the game. Castille stripped the ball at the 1-yard line to preserve a 38-33 win in a play immortalized as "The Fumble."

"It started here - the resource of high school, what you learn in high school," Castille said. "If you'll take these things, further down the road success will come from it."

Stille Moments

A Quiet Time with God

Written by: Jeremiah Castille

Hello Foundation Partners,

I pray all is well for your family and you. During the Spring, everything starts to come alive and the trees and flowers begin to bloom. This time of the year is so special to me because you can see the hand of God in nature as the season changes from winter to spring. I believe God created seasons as a sign to mankind and to teach us about His character and nature.

As we transition from winter to spring we see things that were cold, dead and dormant in the plant and animal world, spring forth with life and vitality. In the animal world the polar bear comes to mind because it has been asleep in its den for the last 3 to 4 months. I believe that during the winter and spring seasons God is trying to teach us how things can be in our lives.

In the winter we may be experiencing a time where it's cold, dormant and there seems to be death all around us. During this time it seems as though God is not answering our prayers and it may even seem like He is not concerned about the things for which we are concerned. When we are in a winter season it is so important to trust God even though we don't see what He is doing for us. What we have to tell ourselves is spring is coming!

Brothers and sisters in the faith, we can trust God to change the seasons in our lives just like He does for the plant and animal kingdom. Scripture says that Our Heavenly Father opens His hands and satisfies the desires of every living thing.

So as we see the season literally changing before our very eyes, I want you to believe God and rejoice that your Heavenly Father is changing your season.

Blessings to you this resurrection season,
Jeremiah
